

Ada M. Healey

Biographical Information 2008

Ada M. Healey directs all real estate strategies for Vulcan Inc., a Paul G. Allen company.

Healey manages the company's significant real estate development portfolio, which primarily includes property in the Pacific Northwest. She also directs a variety of projects and relationships with real estate brokers, developers and other business partners to maximize the portfolio's value and leverage development projects in various markets. In addition, she manages Vulcan's interests in various neighborhood-planning efforts and partnerships that support Vulcan's mission and values.

Prior to joining Vulcan Inc., Healey worked for Clarion Partners, a member of the ING Group. During her 10 years there, she held various positions in asset management, acquisitions and portfolio management, working on behalf of several of the nation's largest pension funds. Earlier, Healey spent several years at NYNEX Properties Company, now owned by Verizon Communications. At NYNEX she managed the company's financing activity, working on acquisition opportunities and developing corporate real estate strategies.

Healey began her career in the insurance industry, working for the Sedgwick Group, London, now owned by Marsh, and in New York City for Metropolitan Reinsurance Company.

She holds a B.A. from Duke University and an M.B.A. from New York University's Leonard N. Stern School of Business.
